Washington, December 20.—The proceedings in the House of Representatives on yesterday, and in the Senate to-day, have damaged the Radicals prodigiously. Thad. Stevens, their leader and dictator, delivered on Monday a speech so detestable in sentiment, hideous in temper, and atrocious in doctrine, that some of his most obedient followers fled from his support when Mokanna unveiled his horrid visage.

The prevailing sentiment among the Radicals now is, that they must get rid by some means of this wolfish old man of the sea, or that he will throttle them.

At the hotels, in the reading rooms, and wherever the Republican members of Congress congregated, after the adjournment of the House, the violence and fury of the old savage was deprecated.

So strong was this manifestation of disapproval, that even that thoroughly lubricated political weathercock, Forney, veered suddenly round to the point on the compass marked "Conservalive," and declares in the Chronicet that no party can support the opinions of Stevens and live. This declaration is valuable as showing the present temper of the Radicals, for had the speech of Stevens met their approval, the Chronicle would have praised it to the skies. Raymond, the editor of the New York Times, who is a member of the House, was exceedingly anxious to lock horns with Stevens, and sprung to his feet when the latter concluded his speech; but the politic Coffax, who is very cunning, failed to recognize him, and thus prevented an exhibition of the fact that there was discord in the ranks of his party.

The message of the President and the report of General Grant were read in the Senate this morning, and their bold, clear and emplatic commendation of the present spirit, temper and loyalty of the people of the South, carried dismay into the ranks of Sumner's cohorts. The President of the United States and the popular and victorious Lieutenant-General both playing away at the same time into the black, piratical craft of Stevens and Sumner, made it reel and quiver. They bore the reading of the President's message with commendable fortitude; but when the report of General Grant was read, applauding the present spirit of the South-ern people, and "corking up" the Freedman's Burean almost as tightly as he did the hero of 10,000 spoons, it was diverting in the extreme to watch the countenances of Sumner, Wade, Foster, &c. The report of General Grant was readily proposed to the Presid vania regiment, says:

I met, this morning, a gallant Southerner from Alabama, who run for Congress in one of the mountain districts and says to the mountain districts, and was defeated by a rebel General, whose sole claim to the votes was the fact that he had lost a limb in the rebel service, and also because the people knew that he never would take this same oath. The Unionist received twenty-one hundred and the rebel thirty-two hundred votes; and the latter openly declared he never would take the Congressional obligation. Of the six members and two Senators elected from Alabama, but one can take the oath. Now, it may be called a hardship to leave the people of such districts without representation; but would it not be a greater hardship to allow them to believe that their rebellion was in fact creditable, by admitting the men who led them into battle to seats in the Congress of a strengthened and restored Union? This, in fact, would be to make loyalty infamous instead of treason.

MISSISSIPPI MANUFACTURES. -- An Aberdeen (Mississippi) paper reports the arrival there of a train of over twenty wagons loaded with machinery for an establishment for the manufacture of cotton goods. This cotton factory will soon be in active operation, and Aberdeen can then boast of the most extensive establishment of the kind in the State, if not in the South.

PRENTICE'S OPINION OF A. H. STEPHENS.—The Louisville Journal, which opposed secession from the beginning, and was a thoroughly Union paper throughout the war, has the magnanimity to speak as follows concerning the ex-Vice-President of the Confederate States:

"Mr. Stephens is one of nature's noblemen; and from our heart of hearts we believe that every throb of his soul is in favor of the Union, of his country, and of his whole country.

"Mr. Stephens ought to be in the Senate of the United States. Let Congress repeal the test oath and re-Congress repeal the test oath and re-ceive into its body again with accla-mations the great and good Georgian, one of the noblest Romans of this or any other country. Oh, we do abhor that narrow spirit and that short-sighted policy that keep from the councils of the Republic such a man as Alexander H. Stanbans." as Alexander H. Stephens."

CHANGING THE NATIONAL MOTTO. In the palmy days of the Republic, the motto upon our coin was expressive of the nature of our Govern-ment—"E Pluribus Unum" (one from many)—but we learn that a "higher law innovation is contemplated, and that the Director of the Mint has forwarded to the Secretary of the Treasury, for his approval, specimens of new coin, bearing the motto, "in God we Trust." Considering the character of those who control the Government at this time, this is not only hypocrisy, but sacrilege. The New York Times says:

"It reminds one unpleasantly of the 'Deigratia' of the divine-right schools of Europe. Let us try to carry our religion—such as it is—in our hearts, and not in our pearts." our hearts, and not in our pockets."
[Newark (New Jersey) Journal.

It is stated that the building in New York, which was formerly Rev. Osgood's church, and more recently the Broadway Athenaeum, has been leased by John Brougham and others, and is to be altered into a theatre.

Proceedings of Council.

COUNCIL CHAMBER,

Columbia, December 26, 1865. Present: His Honor the Mayor; Aldermen Bates, Fisher, Glaze, Harris, Hope, Campbell, Geiger, Stork, Waring, Wells. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

The subject of the market was again presented for the consideration of the Council, and discussion invited. Plan and specifications of Kay & Hewetson were resubmitted. Alderman Bates presented a plan, exhibited by him at a former meeting of Council, with the following recommendation and endorsement of named citizens

To the Hon. Mayor and Aldermen of the City of Columbia.

G: TLEMEN: We, the undersigned, citizens and tax-payers of the city of Columbia, S. C., have examined the plan of a market, city hall, council chamber, mayor's office, and guard house, proposed by Orlando Z. Bates, to be creeted in the year of the old warket, a consideral in his ear of the old market, as specified in his rear of the old market, as specified in his plan.

We cordially agree with the plan proposed, as we think it provides for all the convenience of this community, as well as the surrounding country. Also, the construction of these buildings will cost decidedly less than any others with the same advantages, which will last and be an ornament to the city for all time to come.

We, therefore, respectfully recommend

We, therefore, respectfully recommend to your honorable body the adoption of the plan proposed.

THE PRESIDENT'S HOUSE.—It is understood by the Washington news gatherers that the President's house was cleared of articles of furniture to an extraordinary degree when Mrs. Lincoln left it. The subject has been kept from the public as much as possible, as it was a matter of scandal disgraceful to the country. The Express correspondent says: The President's house is in a very s' bby condition, the old occupants having used up all the appropriations, as well as the furniture. Both Houses of Congress are preparing for a fresh appropriation. "I visited (said Mr. appropriation. "I visited (said Mr. Riddle, of Delaware, in the United States Senate,) the White House, or Executive Mansion, as it is called, last week, and it is a disgrace to the country."—Hartford (Con.) Times.

OLD LINE WHIGS.—A Richmond paper, referring to the Virginia Legislature, says that it is a curious fact that in the House of Delegates, of ninety-six members, with a single exception—that of the delegate from Rockbridge County—every member is an "Old Line Whig," while in the Senate, the exceptions are but three or four, the remainder being all of the like party antecedents. The whole delegation elect in Congress and a very large majority of the State and local officers of every grade, were also of the same party.

When the Southern members of Congress left their seats in that body and joined the rebellion, they were Now, when they have left the rebellion, and want to the their seats, they are traitors still. The Republicans tried to prevent their leaving their seats in the first instance, but they oppose their resuming them now. How consistent!

The Roman Catholic churches in Baltimore have just contributed over $151,000 for the benefit of the poor in the South.

The New York Observer publishes a letter written more than thirty years ago by Rev. Dr. Judson, on the vanity or meathen women, in which he cites as a proof of their heathenish customs that the Karen women wore fancifully constructed bags, inclosing the hair, and suspended from the back part of the head. The origin of "waterfalls" is now explained.

On the Western plains the average cost of killing an Indian, has been about $500,000, while for a squaw the cost is nearly $2,000,000.

OBITUARY.

OBITUARY.

Died, near the city of Columbia, S. C., on the 30th day of October, 1865, Captain JOHN FRIPP, late of Beaufort, S. C., in the seventy-eighth year of his age.

It would be unnecessary here to record his many virtues, had this venerable man been gathered to his fathers among his friends and neighbors, at his own home, where for more than three-quarters of a century he exerted influence and was known, respected and loved.

There he lived throughout a long life, and was regarded by the whole community as the most honorable and upright of men. Were we called upon to point out the fore-most characteristics of this aged citizen while living, we would answer that they were charity, courage and truth. His real worth was unknown to this community, and, therefore, he could not be fully appreciated. Age and disease accompanied him to his exile, and his influence could not be felt in his faeble bodily condition and broken fortune. But there was a time when Capt. Fripp would have claimed position anywhere and under any circumstances. Possessing an ample estate, he was liberal to the poor, and was universally known as the friend of the widow and orphan. The back of his hand was never turned against the needy, and his ear was always open to the cry of distress. He was firm in his opinions, and no man had more courage in defending either his own rights or those of the weak or oppressed. Truthfal and honost, he commanded (even when in error) unusual respect. He served his country in a civil and military capac by at a time when most of the men now living were yet unborn. He has gone to his last rest, leaving behind him an example worthy of imitation. He was a kind husband, a devoted parent and a benevolent master. He was a warm and sincere friend, and in all the relations of life he bore his part with firmness and fidelity, but with kindness and affection. It is not often that such a man as John Fripp has lived and acted his part and died. May the clouds that gathered around his old age be dispelled by a bright future

Departed this life, on the 20th November, 1865, of typhoid pneumonia, HERMAN KRUSE, aged fifty-eight years, three months and sixteen days.

The subject of this notice was, only a few weeks since, among us in the enjoyment of health; but disease came, and in six days the angel of death summoned him to the spirt-land.

Several years ago, the deceased attached himself to the Methodist Church, of which he remained a consistent member up to the hour of his departure. Puring his illness, he spoke frequently of his approaching end, and bade those nearest and dearest to him not to weep for him—counselling them to live right and put their trust in the Lord, that all may again be united in Heaven, "where parting will be no more." Of his approaching dissolution, he seemed assured, and met his destiny with Christian fortitude. When told he had but a few hours to live, calculy he said, "Lord, into Thy hands I commit my soul—Thy will be done." Surrounded by endeared relatives and kind friends, calmly his spirit took its flight, leaving the bereaved survivors the most precious of all legacies—the confident belief that he sleeps in Jesus.

As a husband, he was devoted and affectionate; as a Lather, kind and indulgent. Weep not, sorrowing ones! Remember

As a husband, he was devoted and affectionate; as a father, kind and indulgent. Weep not, sorrowing ones! Remember there is a world where farewells are never spoken. Thither he has gone, and there, too, we may come, if faithful. To his bereaved wife and daughters, the hopeful assurances of his last hours are all that is left them for consolation. "When sinks a weary soul to rest, How mildly beams the closing eyes.—
How gently hoaves the expiring breast! So fades the summer cloud away, So sinks the gale when storms are o'er, So gently shuts the eye of day, So dies a wave along the shore." W.
